Angela Arora-Wilson

Senior Edit Producer

Overview & Experience

Angela Arora-Wilson, a seasoned Senior Edit Producer, PD, and Senior Producer, is renowned for her adeptness in crafting captivating television content, managing complex edits, and adhering to tight schedules.

With over 20 years of experience, she has amassed credits across broadcasters and genres, including award-winning brands such as BBC One's "The Repair Shop," Channel 4's "Married at First Sight," and ITV's "Craig and Bruno's Great British Roadtrip."

Angela's television journey began with a Channel 4 sponsored internship at Maverick TV, leading to many years producing the acclaimed C4 flagship medical show "Embarrassing Bodies."

Recent credits include 'Alan Titchmarsh's Gardening Club' and 'The Bad Foot Clinic'.

Beyond television, she co-founded the Facebook group "TV Switch Up" to support freelancers during this industry downturn and volunteers for a local homeless charity.

A proud Geordie Indian, Angela remains committed to inclusive storytelling, pursuing excellence, and adapting to the evolving landscape of TV production.

Angela is a fantastic Edit Producer who's ready to move forward to the next stage of her career. She's such a calm presence on every production I've worked with her on, with great people management skills that would make her especially suited to a more senior role. She's always the first name down when I crew up for a new production, the best reference I can possibly give. And knowing how valuable other Breakthrough Leader alumni have found the programme, I'm sure she'd work hard to get the most out of the experience.
