Isaac Nartey

Assistant Comissioner

Overview & Experience

Isaac G. Nartey, a BAFTA Award-winning co-creator and Associate Producer of 'Life & Rhymes,' the UK's inaugural spoken word TV program, hosted by his mentor, the late Professor Benjamin Zephaniah. He initially worked as an assistant producer on various Sky Arts programs, including 'Play In a Day,' before assuming the role of Manager of Responsible Production for Sky's content slate. In this capacity, he championed diversity, sustainability, and wellness initiatives across original film, kids' entertainment, arts, and documentaries.

Transitioning to Assistant Commissioner for Sky Kids, Nartey earned executive producer credits for animated series 'Obki' and arts/crafts show 'The Makery,' under Commissioner Ian France's guidance. He also played a significant role in supporting other Sky Kids shows such as 'Moominvalley,' 'FYI Weekly News Show,' and 'Isadora Moon.' Beyond his television work, Isaac is involved as a theatre producer, poet, and youth facilitator, impacting over 70,000 young lives through the Sky Academy Program.

Nominated By: Dwayne Eaton

Isaac is an exceptional creative who has already won a Bafta award for a Life of Rhymes (Sky Arts), a format that he created and helped produce. He is currently on the Sky's AC programme and he's doing a brilliant job. Isaac has a bright future and being a part of BTL would be invaluable to his career development.
